PCC staff impressed with visit to Kispiox School

A side trip resulted in a great visit with students and teacher Brian Muldon at Kispiox School.

The class had recently returned from a field trip to Victoria under the Provincial Capital Commission's Student Travel program, when PCC staff decided to complete the circle and visit the students to talk about their experience travelling to the Capital.

But first stop was taking in the amazing totem poles, some dating back more than a century, created by renowned master Gitksan carvers.

More intricate carving greeted PCC staff as they approached the entrance doors to the school. Inside, they were not only impressed with the building structure but the hallway wall full of stories and drawings the students had made about their trip to Victoria.
